

Tershea Rice is a dynamic leader dedicated to fostering community empowerment and social justice in Baltimore. Currently serving as the Interim Chief Operations Officer for the Greater Baltimore Urban League, Tershea brings over two decades of experience blending administrative prowess with a fervent passion for human resources. Her journey from a U.S. Navy Veteran to an esteemed advocate reflects a deep-seated commitment to service.

A proud Baltimorean, Tershea's advocacy extends across civil rights, women's rights, health, and educational equity, rooted in the belief that genuine change begins at the grassroots level. Beyond her professional pursuits, Tershea embodies entrepreneurship, having founded her own sanitation company as a testament to economic empowerment and the transformative power of love.

Tershea's dedication to fostering a more inclusive and equitable Baltimore permeates every facet of her life. Her outgoing personality and innate ability to connect with community members on a personal level make everyone feel welcomed and valued. Through her warm and inclusive approach, she ensures that no voice goes unheard, creating a sense of belonging for all.

Under Tershea's guidance, the Greater Baltimore Urban League has evolved into a beacon of hope, providing assistance to over 1,500 individuals through innovative programs and comprehensive support services. Her strategic vision has driven the organization towards greater efficiency and impact, leveraging technology to foster sustainable growth.

In addition to her professional endeavors, Tershea serves as the host of the Voices of the People podcast, amplifying diverse voices and stories from the Baltimore community. Balancing her commitment to family, she is also a devoted wife and mother, exemplifying her ability to juggle multiple roles while remaining steadfast in her dedication to creating positive change.

As we reflect on Tershea Rice's remarkable journey and celebrate her tireless dedication, it is evident that she serves as a catalyst for positive transformation in Baltimore. Together, we stand committed to building a brighter future, inspired by Tershea's unwavering vision of empowerment and community-driven progress.
